

MTRI is hosting a day of learning and fun on March 9, with an afternoon dedicated to wild cats.

Wild about wild cats

Do you know your Bobcat from your Lynx? Ever seen a Cougar? Want to know more about Nova Scotia's elusive wild cats?

Make your way to the Mersey Tobeatic Research Institute, Kempt, on Saturday, March 9, 1 - 4 p.m., for an afternoon dedicated to these fascinating animals.

Retired biologist, Bob Bancroft, will join us to reveal some facts about their secretive lives, and other guests will share what wild cats have meant to us over the years. There will be plenty of time for questions and to share your sightings and stories, as well as lots of fun activities for youngsters, such as paw-print plaster casts and mask-making.

If the thought of all that makes you hungry, the folks at the Maitland Bridge Hall will be offering supper starting at 4 p.m., at a cost of $8 per adult and $4 per child, which will include: baked beans, chilli, fish cakes and lots more.
